Samaritan Welcomes Two New Therapists

Samaritan Counseling Center has added two therapists to its clinical staff. They are Thomas K. Sims, PhD, and Patrick Hudson, MD, MA.

Dr. Sims is a psychologist specializing in therapy with children and adolescents and is serving as director of Quality Outcomes for Samaritan. He is president of New Mexico Psychological Association and has experience in public sector behavioral health. Dr. Sims is a veteran who served seven years as a U.S. Army psychologist and he has been licensed to practice in New Mexico for 30 years.

Dr. Hudson recently completed his MA in mental health counseling and is working part time on Samaritan's clinical staff. He is a board-certified plastic surgeon, practicing in Albuquerque for 30 years. In addition to his on-going medical practice, Dr. Hudson is specializing in psychotherapy work with adults and couples, including therapy for physicians and spouses/partners.
